

May 28, 2012, Daily News

Monday, 28 May 2012

Last Updated Monday, 28 May 2012

No single set-top box

TODAYonline

Another source, who declined to be named, said the existing pay-TV operators are already using different systems to provide content, which means the "technical challenges of having a common standard for IPTV (Internet TV) was always going to be a ...

100% of IPTV operators to use residential gateways by 2013

IPTV News

While an estimated 88% of IPTV operators around the world are currently using a residential gateway, that figure is predicted to increase to 100% by 2013. The report states that the most critical residential gateway features are those that help ...

Asia Pacific operators need to find the right way to sell connected-home services

IPTV News

With a combined IPTV subscription base of more than 2 million, Japanese broadband-market giants NTT East and NTT West launched their initial connected-home services in August. They are already offering multiscreen services on a commercial basis – the ...

Brazil's Oi adopts PT's Meo platform for IPTV delivery

IPTV News

By Jamie Beach May 28th, 2012 Brazilian operator Oi is building an IPTV platform based on the same technology as that used by minority shareholder Portugal Telecom for its own managed-network IPTV service 'Meo', according to reports in Portuguese ...

OTT TV and TV Everywhere "swallowing up" mobile video, claims report

IPTV News

... to view mobile as a necessary churn reduction tool to complement existing multichannel subscription services, and less as an opportunity to generate new revenue – a familiar refrain for those in the telecoms industry who embarked on IPTV projects.

Networks need to think outside the box

The Australian Financial Review

However, when discussing the findings it becomes apparent that their guess is as good as anyone's when it comes to figuring out how traditional Australian TV networks will forge a prosperous future in the world of IPTV, superfast broadband and ...

YouView reportedly set for 2500-home pre-Olympics trial

&Irm;Reg Hardware

28th May 2012 12:15 GMT. YouView, would IPTV world's answer to Freeview, may get a soft launch into 2500 homes before the start of the Olympic Games.

M-Tel offers Samsung LCD screens at promo prices

&Irm;Telecompaper (subscription)

The offer is valid for all new customers who subscribe for an IPTV package and 100 Mbps broadband internet package by 30 June. The offer is also available to ...

