

July 5, 2012, Daily News

Thursday, 05 July 2012

Last Updated Thursday, 05 July 2012

Better late than never? Copaco launches IPTV six months behind schedule

TeleGeography

Paraguayan telecoms operator Copaco launched its long-delayed IPTV service in Asuncion this week, after experiencing myriad technical problems. According to local press reports, the USD25 million product launch was initially expected to materialise on ...

Emcali to get IPTV licence in Colombia

Rapid tv news

Colombian regulators are to grant Emcali a licence to launch a pay-TV service in the city of Cali in the form of Cali IPTV directly without the need to participate in an auction.

Copper still in fashion despite speed allure of FTTH

FierceTelecom

While it's clear that deploying IPTV and high resolution OTT video are necessary to compete with cable operators, some service providers like AT&T (NYSE: T) are finding they can deliver a decent experience to their customer base. Leveraging ADSL2, AT&T ...

YP: Restaurants Remains Top Local Search Heading, Medical The Top ...

Search Engine Land

The data in the report are derived from searches conducted across the company's multi-platform network: "563 million searches and nearly 11 billion impressions in Q1 2012 across the YP Local Ad Network's 300+ online, mobile, IPTV and directory ...

JadooTV partners with Pearl Media on Asian IPTV service

Rapid tv news

JadooTV and Pearl Media Group have joined forces to launch JadooPLUS, an entertainment service on JadooTV's IPTV platform, which will feature content from ...

YouView TV service finally unveiled at £299

PC Pro

Under these circumstances, IPTV + Freeview \ Freesat becomes attractive. ... The increasing availability of viable IPTV makes a reevaluation of the way the ...

YouView launches, Now TV on board

Advanced Television

Following much-criticised delays, open IPTV platform YouView has finally launched, with confirmation that Humax-produced set-top boxes will be available via ...