

July 20, 2012, Daily News

Friday, 20 July 2012

Last Updated Friday, 20 July 2012

Aussie commission OKs deal between NBN Co, Singtel Optus

FierceTelecom

Related articles: Telstra boss ready to transform digital media and IPTV businesses · Telstra finalizes "definitive agreements" to take part in government-led NBN ...

Brazilian ISP Terra to stream Olympics to smart TVs

&Irm;IPTV News

Swedish TV app developer Accedo has won a commission to develop an Olympics app for Terra (part of Telefónica Group), a global digital media company and ...

Entone wins order for hybrid TV platform in Alabama

&Irm;Telecompaper (subscription)

IPTV home connectivity products provider Entone announced a new order for its hybrid TV service, which delivers an enhanced HDTV service combining ...

Carlos Slim launches IPTV channel

Rapid tv news

Carlos Slim launches IPTV channel. Iñaki Ferreras | 20-07-2012. Telco America Móvil, owned by Carlos Slim, has launched Ora.TV, the internet television network available in the US, which has begun transmissions with a talk show hosted by Larry King.

Canada's EION to help deliver IPTV in Brazil

&Irm;IPTV News

Canadian firm EION Wireless, a provider of broadband wireless products, has received a funding award from International Science and Technology ...

Foxtel's IPTV revolution

CNET Australia

A full house of Foxtel over IPTV would cost AU$59.50 on a Samsung TV, or AU$74.50 on Xbox 360 (Xbox has two movie packages available). There are slight differences in the channel offerings, with fewer movie channels on the smart TV platform being the ...

MMA Crossfire – 'Kicks, Flicks and Chicks' Blackbelt TV signs deal with Canalsat

Canada.com (blog)

BlackBelt TV, an independent martial arts cable TV network, has announced it signed a distribution deal with Canalsat, a subscription satellite and IPTV service owned by Vivendi. The deal begins September 18th in a phased roll-out and starting with the ...

IPTV Brazil style: streaming Olympics to smart TVs

FierceIPTV

According to IPTV News, Accedo's working to enable Terra's smart TV customers in Brazil to not only watch live action from London but share their experiences via popular social networks connected through their smart TVs. The app will provide 20 ...