

July 30, 2013, Daily News

Tuesday, 30 July 2013

Last Updated Tuesday, 30 July 2013

By menacing Telstra's pay TV, Foxtel could liberate NBN-era HFC ZDNet (blog) Summary: Content-equivalent IPTV services diminish the value of Foxtel's HFC network – and could push Telstra toward an open-access wholesale broadband ...

Finally, Foxtel launches full IPTV service | Delimiter Renai LeMay Pay TV giant Foxtel has launched an Internet streaming version of its service that will allow those with certain smart TVs, gaming consoles or generic personal ...

Foxtel Play IPTV service now live in Australia ahead of official launch Engadget Australians with Mac and PC computers, eligible Samsung Smart TV models and Xbox 360s can now get an IPTV package through Foxtel's Play service, even ... ARRIS joins MoCA board of directors Rapid tv news MoCA claims to be the worldwide standard for home entertainment networking and in use by all three pay TV segments—cable, satellite and IPTV/telco.

YouView seeks more content across more platforms IPTV News YouView, the open IPTV platform backed by a consortium of UK broadcasters and telco providers, is looking to expand the service beyond its current set-top box ...

M1 boosts IPTV service TeleGeography The Straits Times reports that Singapore telecoms operator M1 Limited (M1) has ramped up its IPTV offering by bundling free movies, e-books and games, ... Hannover House and NanoTech Entertainment Release VODwiz ... SmallCap Network VODwiz, the IPTV / OTT venture between Hannover House, Inc. (OTC Pink: ... We are very excited to launch the IPTV Channel for VODwiz, said Hannover House ... BBC Trust to review YouView involvement Advanced Television Launched in July 2012, the open IPTV platform is a joint venture between the BBC and six other partners: commercial broadcasters ITV, Channel 4, Channel 5, ...

Netflix not a TV cannibal, says TiVo Research FierceIPTV Netflix (Nasdaq: NFLX) is many things--including a frontrunner for some Emmy hardware--but it's not a cannibal, according to TiVo Research and Analytics' ...