

Nov. 26, 2013, Daily News

Tuesday, 26 November 2013

Last Updated Tuesday, 26 November 2013

ARRIS engineers headend for BT Sport IPTV News

Telecommunications equipment leader ARRIS Group Inc has engineered a world-class IPTV headend for BT, located at BT Tower in London, providing the ...

ARRIS IPTV Headend Powers New BT Sport Channels Wall Street Journal

Nov. 26, 2013 /PRNewswire/ -- The ARRIS Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: ARRS) Systems Integration team has engineered a world-class IPTV headend for BT, located at BT .

Triple-play revenues to reach $144 billion within 5 years IPTV News

Telcos and cable operators are investing heavily in their networks to upgrade their subscribers to bundles (triple- or double-play), according to Triple-Play ...

Techex delivers first phase of Comux's local TV project with Nevion Advanced Television

UK IPTV specialist Techex has deployed products from leading media transport provider Nevion for the up and coming local TV project in the UK. Techex was

Comcast activates IPv6 on Arris gateways Communications, Engineering & Design Magazine

Separately, Arris announced it was the system integrator for the IPTV headend that BT has been using to distribute BT TV and BT Sport. Arris integrated products ...

IPTV continues to win Dutch customers Broadband TV News

Cable still accounted for over half (55.8%) of digital TV subscribers in Q3, despite losing market share due to the growing adoption of IPTV services over DSL

Intel Looking To Sell IPTV Service By End of 2013 - Report

TechWeekEurope UK

Intel is reportedly looking to sell OnCue, the IP television service developed for the company by former BBC web television executive Erik Huggers, for about ...