

June 25, 2015, Daily News

Thursday, 25 June 2015

Last Updated Friday, 26 June 2015

CenturyLink Brings Its Prism IPTV Service to Minneapolis

DSL Reports

CenturyLink has announced that the company has launched its Prism IPTV platform in Minneapolis, bringing some much-needed competition to bear on ...

Blockbuster quietly reborn as successful TVOD

IPTV News

OTT history has come full circle, with Blockbuster – the fallen video rental giant that once famously turned down the chance to purchase Netflix for a (relative) ...

KPN launches live and on-demand OTT service

Broadband TV News

The operator claims firsts in the market with pause live TV and restart TV, leveraging the technical possibilities of IPTV. KPN said Play van KPN is aimed at ...

Pulse Electronics Introduces G.fast Transformers for use with ...

Business Wire (press release)

These transformers enable Broadcom's chipsets to deliver high-speed broadband access for broadcast quality multi-stream IPTV, voice, data, and home

Shaw profits fall 8 per cent with losses of television and landline ...

The Globe and Mail (subscription)

The results also include a $55-million write-down after abandoning an Internet Protocol television (IPTV) platform the company was developing. Instead, it is ...

Mobile audiences matter most for vid consumption/ ad growth

IPTV News

The new Q1 2015 Global Video Index, published today by Telstra-owned Ooyala, reveals that mobile devices have constituted up to 42% of all online viewing ...

Is Verizon Really Well-Positioned for the Streaming TV Business?

VideoInk

Wait, Verizon already is in the TV services space with an IPTV product called FIOS. What's this we hear, customers, partners, and municipalities are PO-ed at ...