

Nov. 23 2008 Daily News

Sunday, 23 November 2008

Last Updated Sunday, 23 November 2008

Post IPTV launch, cable operators say no to slash rates

Televisionpoint.com - Mumbai, Maharashtra, India

Even though the BSNL has finally launched its much-awaited service of internet protocol television (IPTV) in few cities, the cable operators are not likely ...

iiNet To Launch IPTV Service

Lifehacker Australia - Sydney, NSW, Australia

In a presentation at its AGM, the company said that it intends to continue its rollout of one new product a month, with the most notable being an IPTV ...

Defiant iiNet to launch Tivo-killer broadband PVR

Australian Personal Computer - Sydney, Australia

Despite facing a massive lawsuit from movie and TV production studios, iiNet says it will launch an IPTV service with a difference. ...

Long-Term Review: Foxtel HD+ (Verdict: Needs More Channels)

Gizmodo Australia, Australia

Next year, Foxtel promises to update the box to enable the ethernet port for viewing IPTV content as well, offering even more content. ... Explosive growth of broadband service over cable TV predicted

Siliconindia.com, India

... away," Vijay Yadav, managing director of IPTV service provider UT Starcom, told reporters Friday at the fifth

Broadband Tech India conference here. ... Post IPTV launch, cable operators say no to slash rates

Televisionpoint.com, India

Even though the BSNL has finally launched its much-awaited service of internet protocol television (IPTV) in few cities, the cable operators are not likely ... iiNet seeks 2009 launch for IPTV

WA Business News (subscription), Australia

"Our plans to introduce IPTV in 2009 will further cement iiNet as a market leader in product innovation, content collaboration offerings and customer ... Pay TV Customer Base Expected to Pass 1 Billion Mark by the End of ...

Wireless Design & Development Asia, Singapore

The Forecast also revealed that IPTV will attract 33 percent of the net cumulative additions in the region between 2008 and 2013.